

25 Yard Screamer – Cassandra

Imagine the progressive hard rock stylings of Rush mixed with the sensitivities of modern-day Marillion. You're getting close to 25 Yard Screamer.

The band, based in South Wales, have widened a growing audience with the release of their third album, Cassandra.

Guitarist Nick James says that the lead track on the album expands the myth of Cassandra who in Greek mythology was given the gift of prophecy but not of being believed. How could we apply that to the modern world, if at all?

"It's a powerful, complex piece of work that's right up with the best of Brave-era Marillion..."
★★★★★/10 Geoff Barton, Classic Rock (September 2007)

The album can be enjoyed on different levels, but listeners will be drawn to the quality of the musicianship, the stirring choruses, and the fact that the band have fashioned something provocative and different.

25 Yard Screamer are Matt Clarke Bass Guitar, Nick James Guitars & Vocals, Donal Owen Drums

...plenty of intricate and muscular guitar riffs, pounding rhythms, and just enough atmospheric and proggy interludes to add variety...there's plenty of good stuff here, and lots of talent shown from the three band members...★★★★★/5 Sea of Tranquility
